der are Married at Lafayette.

LEAVE ON WESTERN TOUR.

In the Spring a Young Man's Fancy Lightly Turns to Thoughts of Love.

Yesterday afternoon at one o'clock Mr. Arthur Bernard Lander and Miss May Collier Cheatham, of Lafayette, were united in marriage at the home of Mr. Walter E. Garner, in Lafayette. The wedding was a quiet home affair with only a few near relatives of the contracting parties present. Rev. B. L. Yates, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, said the ceremony that united the lives and destinies of the popular young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Lander left at once for an extensive western tour via St. Louis, and upon their return will board with Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Keatts.

The groom is the head of the prosperous mercantile firm of Lander Bros., in Lafayette, which also owns a store at Juien, Ky. He is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lander and is one of the most promising young business men in the county, who is widely popular in business and social circles. His pretty bride is a daughter of Mr. Wm. S. Cheatham and a niece of Mrs. Walter Garner. She was educated in the schools of Hopkinsville and is a young lady of many charms of person and graces of manner. Her childhood was spent in this city and she is most pleasantly remembered here by a host of friends.

Mr. Lander is to be congratulated upon winning so lovely a bride.

Double Tracks To Gulf.

Fifteen contracts for road building in Tennessee and Alabama along the main line of the Louisville & Nashville railroad have just been awarded, being part of a plan to double track the system from Louisville to Birmingham, and ultimately to Pensacola, Fla. The total cost of the improvements is about $15,000,000.

ENTERTAINED BY GOVERNOR

Unrest That Demands Governmental Changes Due to Public Servants.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 21.—Judson Harmon, of Ohio, Tuesday warned the Kentucky state legislature and all public office holders to analyze their own records to see just how much they were responsible for the unrest that, he said, was making a demand for innovations in government, generally. Gov. Harmon spoke briefly at yesterday's session in answer to a recent invitation of the legislators. He said in part:

"Whatever we may think of the innovations of government we are hearing so much about, it behooves every one who holds a public position to make diligent self-search to find whether any short-coming on his part figures in the unrest which the proposal of these changes signifies. For, while some doubtless advocate them for other reasons, the greater number would not lend an ear without some real or supposed ground for discontent with public agencies as they are.

"And it must be noted that all are involved in the measures in question. I may fairly be said that the support these devices receive varies with the real or supposed need of them, as well as with opinions about the balance of advantage in them."

Gov. Harmon then recounted two of the changes that have been effected since his administration in Ohio began the substitution of a single board of administration for the nineteen state institutions and the adoption of a uniform tax rate.

While in Frankfort Gov. Harmon was the guest of Gov. McCreary.

WATER COMPANY IS GROWING

Expects To Spend $20,000 Or More Improving Its Plant.

At a special meeting of the City Council Monday night an ordinance was passed at the request of the Hopkinsville Water Co., ordering the sale of a new franchise to take the place of the one the company is now operating under. The first franchise was sold in 1895 and the present one in 1905 for a period of 20 years. Certain changes were discussed and agreed to, but the franchise in the main is a copy of the old one. The Water Company is preparing to make extensive additions to the plant and the extension of its franchise was asked for to enable it to float its proposed bonds to better advantage. A new engine is to be installed and other improvements made to the extent of $20,000. One of the improvements will be a hydraulic valve at the standpipe to give immediate pressure from the pumps in the plant in case of fire. Upon the approval and publication of the ordinance the council will order the sale of the franchise at some date within the next thirty days.

INNOVATION

Will Be A Court Docket In Pamphlet Form For Use of Lawyers.

Circuit Court Clerk Walter A. Radford and his efficient deputy Geo. E. Lackey have issued a court docket in book form for the first time, for the session of court which begins next Monday. The booklet contains the number and style of every case on the docket and the day for which it is set for trial. Blank places are left for the attorneys to make their memoranda and the innovation is sure to prove a popular one with the members of the bar. The coming session of court is expected to be a busy one, as the docket is a heavy one.

WENT OVER BANK AT LAKE.

Streimous Experience of Two
Well Known Crofton
Business Men.

W. E. Keith and David E. Bowles happened to an exciting experience Tuesday night while returning from this city to their home in Crofton. About eleven o'clock at night, the night being rainy and dark, they drove their horses against a wire that was hanging in the road, which caused the team to run away. The buggy was turned over and the occupants thrown out, but not injured. The horses continued to run and went over the high embankment one mile this side of Crofton, and fell into the newly formed lake by the roadside, made by the L. & N. Railroad. Both horses were drowned. Messrs. Keith and Bowles went on into Crofton, thinking the team had returned to Crofton. They belonged to Mr. G. C. Bowles, the liver man, and were worth about $300. They were not found until yesterday morning.

FRANKFORT

Liquor Interests Are Making
Use of Federal Court's Decision.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 21.—The recent decision of a federal court permitting express companies to carry interstate shipments of liquor into dry territory in spite of prohibitory state laws is being used by the liquor interests of Kentucky as an argument against the enactment of the pending bill extending the county unit to the entire state. This decision is cited in a memorial signed by T. M. Gilmore, president of the model license league, which has reached the members of the legislature. He makes the plea that under that decision an extension of the county unit will amount to discrimination against Kentucky's own famous product and urges if the law is enacted it be so amended as to prohibit the "purchase or possession" of intoxicating liquor in dry counties.

The senate Tuesday passed a bill appropriating $25,000 for the Perry centennial celebration.

The Knight automobile bill passed the lower branch unanimously.

Sudden Rise.

The river rose rapidly Tuesday night from the heavy rains, and was out of its banks yesterday morning above the dam. The water was almost up to Second street bridge and covered the retaining bank on the West Side. The river soon began falling and no harm was done. The floodgate in the dam is to be closed March 1st.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is about to desert the carpet business in the West for a partnership or an important place in a prominent Wall Street financial concern. Young Mr. Roosevelt with his wife and little daughter came to New York a month ago for a visit at Oyster Bay homestead.
They were expected to return to San Francisco on March 1.

Charging the United States with the unjust oppression of Colombia as a smaller, weaker and helpless nation, Gen. Pedro Nel Ospina, Minister from that republic, addressed a letter to Huntington Wilson, Assistant Secretary of State, in which he announced that the proposed visit of Secretary Knox to his country is "most inopportune." Following directly upon the heels of a note handed in person to Secretary Knox, in which he accused the United States with the premeditated violation of the treaty of 1846 by which it agreed to maintain the sovereignty of Colombia over the province of Panama, the action by Gen. Ospina is regarded in the State Department as a direct insult to the American Government. Aroused by the letter to Assistant Secretary Wilson, official of the Government express belief that as soon as it heard of its Minister's offense, Colombia would immediately cable his recall. If Colombia does not see fit to take action, the United States, it was stated, will hand Gen. Ospina his passports and demand an apology from his Government.

Will Not Obey.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 21.—Miss Bessie S. Moss, suffrage leader, declined to subscribe to the word
"obey" in the Episcopal marriage service, and in consequence her wedding to Abert E. Chamberlain, of New York, was postponed. The minister who was to have officiated refused to leave out the objectionable word. He was sustained by his bishop. The couple withdrew the wedding invitations and will be married today by a Baptist minister, who has agreed to respect the suffragist bride's objections.

tage was first blown up with dynamite,
it is supposed, and then Williams' throat was cut as he attempted to escape. The Coroner's jury charged Marion Crockett with the crime and he was arrested and placed in jail, bond being refused.

nervous prostration, and had headache, backache, pains in my right side, and smothering spells. I called in physicians to treat my case, but without relief. Finally I tried Cardui, and it gave perfect satisfaction. I recommend it to every sick woman."
Are you weak, tired, worn out? Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women? Cardui has a record of over fifty years in relieving such troubles, and will certainly benefit you. It prevents those frequent headaches, and keeps you up out of bed, feeling fresh and happy. Try Cardui.

AMUSEMENT:

The play, "An Everyday Girl," which is to be presented at Holland's Opera House Feb. 26, is from the pen of Thomas Hopkins. In this work Mr. Hopkins has made intelligent use of the chief points of his subject, skillfully adjusting the widely contrasting relations of the dominant persons of the group and so arranging the action that the play moves with reassuring celerity.
"An Everyday Girl" is well acted by a capable cast including Miss Bisnette in the role of Rose Norton, about whom the story of the play is woven. The play is termed a Romantic Comedy Drama. The play is well staged, and the scenic environment is both pleasing and attractive.

CHARACTER TOLD BY THE EYE

Different Colorations Must Mean Something, Is the Argument of Distinguished Scientist.

Professor Punnet, in a recent work, argues that it is difficult to believe that the markedly different eye colorations which occur in the same species are not associated with deep-seated chemical differences influencing the character and bent of the individual. "May not these differences in pigmentation," he asks,
"be coupled with and so become in some measure a guide to mental and temperamental characteristics?" In the national portrait gallery the pictures of celebrated men and women are largely grouped according to the vocations in which they have succeeded. The observant will probably have noticed that there is a tendency for a given type of eye color to predominate in some of the larger groups. It is rare to find anything but a blue among the soldiers and sailors, while among the actors, preachers and orators the dark eye is predominant, although for the population as a whole it is far scarcer than the light. The facts are suggestive, and it is not impossible that research may reveal an intimate connection between peculiarities of pigmentation and of mind."

Had Been in Training.

A man who had undergone a court examination by a lawyer in Chicago without faltering for a second was complimented by the lawyer later for his accurate manner of recalling early and minor episodes of his life. "I was well rehearsed for it," said the witness. "Only yesterday I had to fill out an application for a telephone."

Disillusioning
Carson

With a little cry of pain, Alice sank to the snow covered pavement.
Beneath the fresh fallen snow was an icy patch, and her ankle had turned under her.

She had been detained at the office rather late and the street was deserted. Even the policeman on beat had sought shelter from the storm.

She made an effort to rise, but sank back helplessly as she placed a strain on the injured ankle and she began to cry softly. For perhaps ten minutes she lay there, then from around the corner came a muffled foot and she gave a glad little cry that attracted attention.

"What's the matter?" called a cheery voice. "Had a slip?"

"I have sprained my ankle," she explained. "I can't get up and it began to look as though I should have to spend the night here."

"I guess not," was the cheerful response. "Live far from here?"

"Four blocks down and one over,"

"Not worth while calling a cab," he commented, as he took a quick glance around. "I don't think we could get a cab if I telephoned for one. This seems to be the proper caper."

In a nearby basement some boy had left his sled, and the man caught it up. "This will do finely," he announced. "I'll have you down there in no time at all."

Gently he raised her in his strong arms and disposed her comfortably on the sled. Then he grasped the ropes and started off at a brisk trot.

"It reminds me of the times when I used to draw my sweetheart to school on my sled," he called over his shoulder. "Ever live in the country?"

"Long ago," she answered. "It seems ages."

"Then I guess this makes you young again, too."

"That's polite," she replied with a laugh.

"I didn't mean that," he stammered.
"I meant it would make you a kid again. I didn't suppose that you were an old lady, though with that brown veil, you might be my own grandmother."

"Thank you again," she cried.

"I guess I won't say anything more,"
he chuckled. "Perhaps I wasn't built to pay compliments. Is this where your turn?"

"To the right."

"Right it is," and the sled swung around the corner. Presently, at her word, he drew up in front of a house and again he lifted her in his strong arms. The ankle hurt terribly, but there was something comforting in the sense of his strength.

It was only a moment before his ring was answered and as the door swung open and the yellow light streamed out, Mrs. Donaldson gave a cry of surprise.

"Why, Ned Carson, what are you doing here?"

"I've a bundle marked 'damaged in transit,'" he explained, smilingly, "but I did not know that it was for you. Is it Alice?"

"Certainly, the poor child. Take her in the parlor and I'll be right along with hot water and bandages."

Carson carried the girl into the parlor and deposited her carefully upon the sofa.

"I never thought," he said softly, "when I spoke of carrying my sweetheart to school, that it was my real one-time sweetheart that I was talking to."

Alice colored vividly. She remembered those old days, and how they had plighted their childish troth. Ned had gone away and they had lost sight of each other. What would he say when he heard of her engagement?

"I'll run away with that borrowed sled before the police get after me," he announced briskly. "Then I'll be back to see if I can be of any use."

"Alice heard the front door close and settled weakly back upon the pillow.
It seemed cruel, just as he had found her again and just when circumstances recalled their childhood, that she should repay his kindness with disillusionment. She had been genuinely fond of Ned in the old days, and she hated to give him pain. Yet it was best that she should tell him frankly. It was a generous cruelty."

Presently he came stamping back to announce that he had caught the small boy just going for a policeman, and that he had compromised for a quarter.

His good humor was infectious, and Alice found herself forgetting her pain in listening to his recital of his experiences in getting ahead. He was so frankly proud of his success that it seemed a shame to dispel the newly-awakened romance by a word, yet she nerved herself to the task.

"I have a surprise for you," she began. "After all this talk of old times, doesn't it seem funny to hear that I'm engaged. I'm going to be married in the spring."

She shrank back against the pillows, awaiting the look of disappointment she feared. Ned's face lighted with kindly interest.

"Take my advice," he said, "and go to Washington for your honeymoon.
They are so used to bridal couples there that no one notices them. That's where we went last year."

Then, blushing guiltily, they looked to each other's eyes and—laughed.

THREE THINGS YOU NEED..

First—

"Kentuckian"

A vital, new newspaper with the interest of the entire community at heart. Issues of 20 days are handled without fear or favor. You will find in this paper an up-to-date department for each member of the family. Clean, honest, straightforward—it is a paper family should not be without.

Second—

Technical World Magazine

is the one magazine that not only entertains in a fascinating manner, but which also instructs. It is the magazine for the busy business man, or for the person who wants to lull away a summer's afternoon, and be agreeably informed at the same time. It is profusely illustrated, and tells in a simple and interesting way of the discoveries of scientists, the achievements of inventors, the feats of engineers and explorers, and the opening of every new field of human endeavor. What Jack London says—"I have just chanced upon my first copy of TECHNICAL WORLD MAGAZINE. There isn't anything like it. I want more, and I cannot wait for them to come, so I am sending you herewith check for which please enter my subscription and send me immediately the last two years' back numbers."

Third—

A Fine Atlas

This one is just off the press. This is the year to obtain a new atlas. The 1910 Census has just been completed, and this atlas contains the official figures. 128 pages of 8 color maps brought right down to date—every map giving the results of the most recent surveys. All railroads are shown and named, and maps of all large cities are included. There are 21 double page maps showing in detail portions of the U. S. and Canada. Dimensions 10 1/2 x 13 1/2. Bound in cloth—Silver Leaf Title—printed on heavy plate paper. Sells separately for $3.00. A splendid gift.

ALL THREE
Only $3.80

Special arrangement with Technical World Magazine and the publishers of this Atlas makes this offer possible. But it is very strictly limited. You must act immediately.

NAS TORTLES WELL TRAINED

Naturalist Seems to Have Accomplished Something Very Close to the Impossible.

Of all living creatures the turtle is undoubtedly the slowest in its movement and probably possesses the least brain. Yet a well-known American naturalist has succeeded in training three of these creatures to do a number of little tricks. He places them, one above the other on spools, and if a piece of cabbage or other green stuff is held out in front of them, they will make a complete circuit, all moving in unison, keeping their balance and not tumbling off. The bigger turtle will also ring a bell. This it grasps in one of its fore feet, jerks it off the ground, and then gives it a shake. It is quite amusing to watch the slow, deliberate manner in which this is done. The turtles have always lived in their owner's house, spending their time in the kitchen hunting down the vermin. One of the turtles draws a little cart about the garden, a task which he apparently does not resent in the least. Of course he is never kept harnessed for any length of time. He is quite tame, follows the children about the garden, and will even eat from their fingers.

RESENTED SLUR ON VICTORIA

"Orator" on London Street Found Crowd Put a Decided Limit on Free Speech.

At Marlborough street John Bonnar Thompson, a public speaker, was charged with doing an act calculated to provoke a breach of the peace whilst lecturing in Hyde Park.

William Buckley, an ex-police constable, said he heard the accused referring to the late Queen Victoria as a gin drinker. The crowd round the prisoner became very excited, and a constable arriving on the scene, the accused was arrested.

William Hollins, a painter, said the crowd shouted to the prisoner: "You ought to be whipped."

The prisoner, in defense, said he was a socialist, but he denied referring to the late Queen Victoria as alleged.

Mr. Mead said that if the prisoner had any regard for his own skin he had better not repeat his conduct. He would have to pay a fine of 40 shillings, or in default go to prison for a month.

The Prisoner—Can I have time to pay?

Mr. Mead—No.—London Daily News.

SLOT SAVING MACHINES.

Slot machines as depositories for savings have been found by a Budapest banking concern to be an excellent means of increasing the amount of money handled by its savings department. The slot machines are placed in the street, and the persons placing money in them are automatically given a receipt, which may be exchanged against a bank book, or kept until such time as the receiver is desirous of withdrawing the deposit from the bank. The idea is that people will deposit small amounts, if relieved of the necessity of going to the bank to do so, and also that the sight of the machines will cause them to deposit coins within instead of spending them. The deposits of the bank have shown a remarkable increase since the idea was instituted.

PRIMITIVE COFFEE MILL.

Coffee must undergo considerable treatment before it is ready for the coffee pot. The great coffee plantations in South America, today are equipped with modern machinery, but in out of the way places the old primitive methods of handling coffee are still in vogue. The outer covering of the coffee bean must be removed before the berry can be dried. This pulping, as it is called, necessitates an immense amount of labor.

FIREMEN'S DOUBLE DANGER.

While copperheads, rattlers and adders writhed over the floor, and tarantulas and other poisonous insects darted here and there, firemen recently fought a blaze in a bird and snake store in San Antonio, Tex. The reptiles became liberated when the streams of water shattered the boxes in which they were confined. Five hundred parrots were suffocated and 350 snakes were roasted to death.

RECORDED A SMALL POINT

Brilliant Scheme of Forgetful Husband Slightly Marred by Circumstantial Evidence.

It was the early hours of the morning, and not yet light, when Brown woke up with a sense of impending dread.

He had suddenly remembered that it was his wife's birthday, and he had bought her no present. And Mrs. Brown would want to know why.

Ah, an idea! Creeping stealthily downstairs, he put a very large plate on the hall table and then, still silently the dog into the house. The preparations were complete.

"Many happy returns of the day, my dear!" he chortled. "As it is your birthday, I have got a little surprise for you. Be quick, and come downstairs and see it."

Full of anticipation, the good lady followed him and was just in time to see him kick the dog out of the house and stare in amazement at the empty plate.

"If that wretched dog hasn't eaten all the beautiful cake I brought home for you last night!" he cried, in well-acted anger.

But he had overlooked one little fact. The dog had worn his muzzle. It took a long time to explain the incident away.

PRESS AGENTS' TALES

"My press agent says that I am going to Venice as soon as the show closes."

"And I'm going to tour Japan. By the way, let's hit some manager for a concert hall job."

HEROISM OF EIGHT-YEAR-OLD.

A remarkable story of the heroism of a boy of eight was told at the Liverpool (Eng.) coroner's court recently. Charles Abbott, who, with his brother and sisters, resided with his great aunt at Moss Farm, Walton, awoke half an hour after going to bed to find his room full of smoke. Seeing his great aunt with her clothing on fire, he climbed the banisters to get buckets of water, which he promptly poured over her. Then, apprehensive of further danger, he made his way to the bedroom of his brother, aged four, whom he carried downstairs on his back, and returned again for another child aged six. Unhappily his great aunt died from shock.

TEMPORARY MEMBER ONLY.

Lincoln Steffens, the well known writer, believes in free speech—the right to say anything, any time, and anywhere. And he has organized a club to that effect.

A short time ago Mr. Steffens made a speech advocating his theories. At the end he invited those who would to join his "Free Speech club." Only one man accepted the invitation.

He said: "I'd like to join your club long enough to tell you what I think about it."—Everybody's Magazine.

TO THE RESCUE.

"I suppose by this time you have more money than you know what to do with," said the old acquaintance.

"No," replied Mr. Dustin Stax; "I haven't more than I know what to do with. But I might be a little puzzled about it now and then if I didn't get a lot of helpful advice on the subject from mother and the girls."

CLEAN JOKE.

CREAM OF NEWS COMPILED AND COLLECTED FROM ALL SOURCES

Yesterday was the beginning of Lent.

If eggs are worth 40 cents a dozen, what is Gen. Ainsworth?

Thos. J. Tyne, a Nashville attorney, is a Democratic candidate for Governor of Tennessee.

Frank Glover, a 17-year-old boy at Lexington, whose life was saved by the transfusion of blood from his mother's veins, is able to leave the hospital.

William Randolph Hearst has declared for Champ Clark for President. This is the first indication that anybody outside of Missouri was taking Champ's boom seriously.

Former Governor John I. Cox, of Tennessee, is a candidate to represent his county in the Legislature. John Quincy Adams was a representative in Congress after he was President.

The order of Knights of Pythias was 48 years old on Feb. 19. The Henderson lodge celebrated the anniversary with a big banquet. Lucian H. Davis, of this city, who is one of the officers of the Grand Lodge, was one of the speakers.

The Ways and Means committee is trying to take the tariff off sugar and put a duty on silk stockings to make up the loss. This is good Democratic doctrine and all right, but it is generally what is put in silk stockings and not what is put on them that attracts attention.

Sam Sansberry, city prosecutor of Owensboro, who was caught in a crap game and fined $20, and removed by the Council, has been reinstated. He appeared before the body he said as "a penitent Magdalen" and made an abject apology, promising to be good. He was reinstated by the close vote of 7 to 5.

Mme. Schumann-Heink says that one of the seven reasons why the American husband is God's best handiwork is that he permits his wife to rule the roost, or words to that effect. There are some men who will never rest exactly easy until they know what the other six reasons are.—Nashville Banner.

Justice Mahlon Pitney, the dark horse candidate for Justice Harlan's seat on the Supreme Court Bench, was selected after Judge Howk, Secretary Navel and other western men had been one after another tipped as winners. The new Justice is 55 years old, and has been an attorney and judge since 1882. From 1901 to 1908 he served as associate justice of the New Jersey supreme court.

The Court of Appeals has upheld a verdict of $40,000 against the L. & N. Railroad for the destruction of two warehouses at Millersburg, Ky., for which the Burley Society obtained the big judgment. The court held that the Burley Society was legally constituted and is not a trust as long as it does not seek to advance the price of tobacco beyond its real value.

No better evidence could be asked of the real stability and prosperity of Hopkinsville than is shown by the fact that within the last two or three weeks more than $12,000 has been subscribed to the funds to erect dormitories for McLean and Bethel Colleges, the two institutions that have done so much to make the city an educational center and in which the people feel a just pride. These funds are still growing and the progressive business men of Hopkinsville will do their part to encourage these enterprises.

GEORGE'S HAIR.

A few years ago a learned professor announced that there had been discovered proof that Cleopatra had red hair. Now comes Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, who gives his red hair as an explanation for George Washington's courage in facing his father when the paternal wrath was called down upon the son's head for chopping down the cherry tree. "The father of his country had red hair," said Dr. Gunsaulus. "Anyone visiting the library at Washington and examining a lock of George Washington's hair cannot fail to see the 'fire' in it and admit that he was red-headed. There was a reason for his bravery."

Shawn of Skarrow.

A new book from the pen of James Tandy Ellis, Assistant Adjutant General of Kentucky, has just been issued by The C. M. Clark Publishing Co., of Boston. The title is "Shawn of Skarrow" and the scene is laid on the upper Ohio river forty years ago. It is a book that at once rivets the attention and holds it to the end. Shawn, the boy hero of the story, is a character to thrill the admiration of men and melt to tenderness the heart of women. Dr. Hissong, who went to the Kentucky Legislature and put through his bill to lock and dam the Kentucky river; Maj LeCroix, whose beautiful daughter loved and was loved by Shawn, notwithstanding the shadow on his brow; Mrs. Alden, Old Brad, whose sermon on "Da Prodigal Son" is a humorous side feature, all furnish entertainment for the reader. It is such a story as could be written only by a born Bohemian, a man of letters and a man of the world and one big of brain and warm of heart. Mr. Ellis has added much to his reputation as an author by his latest book. It sells for one dollar.

Popular Mechanics Magazine For March.

Nearly every magazine editor in the United States is able to make an emphatic statement as to which number of his periodical is the best each year. It may be the October or it may be the June number, but the editor knows without a flicker of hesitation just what one it is. If urged, he may go on to state that it is a peculiar fact, not obviously traceable to any set of conditions, yet recurring annually with mathematical precision. With the Popular Mechanics Magazine it is always the March number that has this fatalistic tendency to surpass. Other issues may contain more articles and pictures and have greater effort expended on them, but the March always wears the laurels, nevertheless. Some painstaking analyst sometime may determine in what this superiority of the blustrious month consists; as for ourselves, we are content simply to feast on the good things set before us.

The dirigible balloon, charged with being the most spectacular, expensive and fallacious contrivance ever exploited by the human race, is discussed at length by Victor Loughheed in a profusely illustrated article. The arguments against this form of aerial navigation are clear and forcible, and easily comprehended by the most casual reader. On the other hand, the rapid development of the aeroplane is shown by an account of the recent Paris exhibit, and views of improved types of machines. Other articles on aviation describe the important events of the month and a daring "stunt" of Legagneux in France.

Minority Report.

United States Senator Isaac Stephenson, of Wisconsin, is not entitled to his seat in the opinion of five members of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections who filed a minority report with the Senate.

Every Month Near Death.

Foster, Ark.—Mrs. Fannie Ellis, of Foster says: "I was sick for seven years, and half the time could not stand on my feet. Every month I was very near death. I tried Cardui, and in two months, I was cured, and am now stout and healthy. My friends all ask me now what cured me. My looks are a testimonial to Cardui." No matter how serious or how long-standing the trouble, Cardui will help you. It is a mild, vegetable, tonic remedy, especially adapted to relieve and cure the common womanly ailments. It relieves womanly pains and restores womanly strength. Try Cardui.

Italians Make Bombs While Flying.

The airmen of the Italian military aeroplanes, which have been dropping bombs into the ranks of the Turks, do not start flight with the bombs loaded, lest the machines should come to earth heavily and thus cause disaster. Instead, the officer whose duty it is to drop bombs while his companion operates the aeroplane, fills each bomb as he requires it, holding the bomb case or shell between his knees and the screw cap between his teeth, pouring the ingredients in as best he can. The bombs used are about the size of an orange.—From the March Popular Mechanics Magazine.

PEMBROKE R. R. 3.

Buford Johnson, Correspondent

Col. Lee S. Oliver, our rural route carrier, will get Thursday, Feb. 22, as a legal holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bell spent Saturday night and Sunday with the family of Mr. Tom Jones, near Hopkinsville.

Misses Pauline and Lucile Petrie and Alma and Fannie Burrus, of Fairview, were guests of Miss Ethel Wade, Sunday.

Mr. R. E. Fields, of near St. Elmo, spent a day or two with his daughter, Mrs. J. E. Petrie.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fulcher visited at Mr. E. P. Bell's in Bell's Chapel neighborhood.

Mr. L. M. Johnson, of Fairview, spent Monday here on business.

Buford Johnson attended preaching at the Christian church at Pembroke, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Hall spent last Thursday in Hopkinsville.

Mrs. Lena Hall returned to her home at Allensville after a two weeks' visit with Mrs. M. E. Morton.

Misses Mary and Julia Tandy, of near Fairview, spent Saturday night with their cousin, Miss Ethel Wade.

A tenement house on the farm of Mr. W. W. Eddins was destroyed by fire about noon Friday. The fire originated from a defective chimney. The house was occupied by a negro named Lacy. We did not learn whether the house was insured or not.

Ed Wade and wife spent Saturday in Hopkinsville shopping.

A valentine party was given at the home of Mrs. Allie Wade at Fairview last Wednesday night. A large crowd was present and enjoyed it very much.

Miss Bettie Morton is spending several days this week with her friend, Mrs. Dan Carneal, near St. Elmo.

Mrs. J. E. Petrie and grandfather, Jno. Hopkins, have been confined to their rooms for several days with severe colds.

Mrs. O. E. Layne, of Pembroke, visited relatives here Monday.

DOWDY DEAD REVIVAL AT

Clarksville Man Killed By Falling From a Bridge.

The body of Sam Dowdy, who mysteriously disappeared Saturday night, creating considerable excitement among his friends, was found Monday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock, under the Louisville & Nashville trestle near Red River by Deputy Sheriff G. W. Welker, says the Clarksville Lea-Chronicle.

The body was stiff when found and had evidently been dead several hours. There was a deep gash on the back of the head, the left arm and left leg were both broken and the injuries indicated the cause of death. The theory that Dowdy had been foully dealt with was scouted by the officers after finding $73.35 in his pockets; only about fifty dollars of his money was gone and this is supposed to have been spent during the day on Saturday. The theory now is that while intoxicated he wandered out on the trestle and fell off, sustaining the injuries which resulted in his death.

NICE DIVIDENDS

Engineer of Interurban From Hopkinsville to Paducah Completed Report.

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 21.—The report of Major W. A. Calhoun, consulting engineer of the Kentucky Southwestern Electric Railways, Light and Power Company, which has projected an interurban from Hopkinsville to Paducah and from Paducah to Hickman, Ky., is completed. It shows that the system will pay handsomely; that after providing for the interest on the bond issue and 7 per cent on the preferred stock, the sinking fund, depreciation, etc., there will be 15.8 per cent, applicable to dividends on the common stock.

M. E. CHURCH

With Evangelist Pat Davis Assisting Dr. Kasey In The Services.

INTEREST GROWING DAILY.

Stirring Appeals Are Being Made By The Gifted Preacher.

The revival at the Methodist church, which began Monday, bids fair to be a meeting of great interest, judging by the large attendance during the inclement weather of this week.

Rev. Pat Davis, the evangelist who is assisting Rev. A. R. Kasey and Rev. G. W. Lyon in the meeting has been here before. About five years ago he conducted one of the biggest revivals the Methodist church has ever had. He is a preacher of great earnestness, simplicity and fervor and his appeals to sinners seldom fail to arouse keen interest.

Services are held every morning at 10 o'clock and at 7:30 in the evening.

Bridge Below Paducah.

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 21.—Under the supervision of J. Burley of Chicago, an engineer, the right-of-way for the Burlington bridge, which will span the Ohio river twelve miles below Paducah, is being cleared at Metropolis, Ill. Work on the $3,600,000 bridge will be started at once. The bridge will be used by the Burlington, Frisco, Illinois Central, Big Four and Louisville & Nashville railroads.

ONE DOG SHOTS ANOTHER.

A Queer Accident Occurs in Town in Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 20—It is seldom that one dog shoots and kills another, but that is what happened near Dugald, a town thirty miles east of here, according to advices received last night.

A shotgun had been tied to a stump for the purpose of killing prairie wolves which came to feed off an carcass.

From the trigger of the gun a string extended to the barn, a distance of 200 feet. When a wolf was seen eating at the carcass it was planned to pull the string and kill the animal.

While one dog was enjoying a meal off the carcass, another playfully caught the string in its mouth and began prancing around. The owner called the dog, but before he could attract his attention the weapon was discharged and the feeding dog fell dead.

IN DISGRACE

City Attorney of Owensboro Fined for Shooting Craps.

In Owensboro police court City Prosecuting Attorney, Sam Sansberry was tried before Judge Haskins on the charge of gaming by shooting craps in a room that was said to have been under the supervision of

W. A. Whitescarver and Morris Burns, and fined $20 and costs.

At the time of the raid Sansberry was one of the 16 men caught by the 16 men caught by the police and it was understood that he was being tried on a warrant that was confined to a game when the officers appeared on the scene, but when Rollie Jackson, the star witness for the Commonwealth, took the stand, he stated that Sansberry was shooting craps on the same Sunday, but between 12:30 o'clock and 5 o'clock Sunday morning.

A FINE LINE OF COPY-RIGHTED ART CALENDARS.

The plans for your advertising campaign this year should by all means include a handsome Art Advertising Calendar for 1913. We have secured the exclusive agency for the Copyrighted Calendars produced by the A. M. Collins Mfg. Co., of Philadelphia.

This is one of the largest and most substantial Calendar houses in the United States, and the quality of their line is superior to that of any ever shown in this section.

This line will be handled exclusively by us in Christian and Trigg counties. It includes a great number and variety of subjects in full color, as well as some hand colored pictures of exceptional beauty.

The samples for 1913 will be in our hands shortly, and we shall be glad to show them to you at an early date. MAKE NO PLANS FOR YOUR 1913 CALENDAR UNTIL YOU SEE THIS EXTRAORDINARY LINE. HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN.

She Felt Unworthy

"I don't suppose you are hungry, but we saved some supper for you, dear," said Jane's mother to Jane as that young person slowly approached, dragging her white lace parasol across the stump-infested lawn of Jane's family's summer cottage.

Jane sank with emphasis into a cane rocker and gazed moodily into an unusually fine sunset.

"Thanks, I'm not hungry," she said, briefly.

Jane's brother, who was tastefully attired in soiled white trousers and a track shirt, reared the upper half of his body from the cool grass and regarded her critically.

"You look seedy, sis," he remarked. "What did they do to you at the Hon. Mrs. Biggs' deckle edged and hand tooled party?"

"Do!" cried his sister, turning pink. "They didn't do a thing but make me feel that I ought to blush for my temerity in presuming to exist, let alone my unpardonable pretensions to social standing in the community. It's a good thing Mrs. Biggs' superior eye has never fallen upon your present costume, Jim, or the Biggses might invite us to leave the colony."

The youth addressed kicked off a tennis shoe delightedly and crowed in derision of Mrs. Biggs.

"My dear Jane!" protested their mother. "James, don't be rude."

"The first thing I heard when I got to the party," proceeded Jane, "was Mrs. King bemoaning the fact that the like is so dirty. She said that she just shuddered every time she went in, and the very moment she got out she always ran for the bathtub and turned on the hot water! And yet I had almost broken my neck to take my dip in that same lake at 1:30, so as to be all nice and fresh for the party!"

"Swat the fly; he is a deadly peril!" quoted Jane's brother, pawing the turf in ecstasy. "How does it feel to be in the insanitary class, sis?"

"Well, of course, that set me right at once as to the kind of people who were there," pursued Jane, "and when I looked carefully over those present I was sorry I hadn't brought along our storage warehouse receipt just to intimate to all assembled near that this dress I'm wearing isn't the only one I have in the world." She paused. Then she went on, pensively: "One of the simplest costumes at the party was a heliotrope satin, appliqued in real lace and veiled in black marquette—sort of a tight effect."

"You've got it!" declared Jane's brother, delightedly. "I saw that woman yesterday trying to climb on the board walk in front of the inn and flying signals of distress."

"Then the conversation turned on servants," said Jane. "Mrs. King simply couldn't find a laundress that she could trust with her little things, and Mrs. Biggs had really hesitated about taking the cottage this year when she remembered what a state her French embroidery was in at the end of last season. Then they compared notes as to how many pieces each one sent out to be washed each week. Mrs. Holmes led with 40 hand towels. That was rather sad conversation for you to attempt to participate in when you've passed the morning bending over the soap suds doing the family washing for seven!"

"I see you doing it, sis!" encouraged her brother, admiringly.

"Further," reported Jane. "Mrs. Browne is much dissatisfied with several little matters, so prepare to shed a sympathetic tear. She wants to give a lawn party, but she would be ashamed, actually ashamed, to invite any one to her lawn; she counted 15 stumps from the window of her breakfast room alone! I thought of this." Jane waved her hand.

"Jeems," said her brother, with sudden severity. "I desire you to extract the stumps from this greensward at once. Then seed it down with the best quality of lawn grass and engage a bright young landscape artist to plant a border of dwarf redwoods around the pump!"

His sister laughed. "Well, I don't care, Jim; it was pretty awful," she said. "Goodness, I really and truly am hungry; caterers never fill me in a way that you could call satisfactory. I believe I'll go out to the kitchen, mother, and find that supper you saved for me."

Throws Away $39,160.

Misers have great resourcefulness in selecting hiding places for their treasures, but they rarely adopt the methods employed by a traveler on the railway line between Lescar and Pau, in France. This individual, who owned an estate worth about $48,700, sold all his property and insisted upon being paid the full purchase price in negotiable bearer shares and in coupons payable to the Bank of France.

He disposed of some of his money, and then during a brief halt of the train approaching Pau threw his pocketbook containing the remainder, approximately $39,160, into a hedge bordering the line.

There it was found recently by a hedge clipper, who deposited his find at the nearest police station. By the laws of France it will become his property at the end of twelve months unless the original owner claims it and proves his right.

THE BLONDE MAN'S BABY

By Dorothy Douglas

Cynthia gazed through the hedge that separated her garden from the one next door.

"Little darling," she breathed and her nerves quivered for a touch of the tiny mite who played among the sunflowers at the foot of the garden.

"Da, da, da!" The child's high-pitched voice followed each attempt as she strained on tip-toe for the great yellow heads.

"It must be that blonde man's baby." The minor part of Cynthia had gone off into disinterested theory as to baby's parentage. In a vague way she remembered having seen a very blonde man entering the gate next door. "That languid creature is the mother." She also recalled having seen a woman rocking idly on the veranda.

But the major part of Cynthia's being was given over to unceasing longing for the child; it's elfin beauty had possessed Cynthia's soul for the past ten days.

"Little lonely heart!" sighed Cynthia and hurried unflattering thoughts toward the blonde man and his languid wife.

She drew back behind a clump of bushes. A woman had come hurriedly into the garden next door. Cynthia watched her stoop and print a hasty kiss on the baby's cheek, after which she stepped out and into a waiting carriage.

Cynthia gasped. For a moment she couldn't believe what her senses told her—that the woman with the traveling coat and suit case had gone away and left the child alone.

A slow smile dawned in Cynthia's eyes. The maid in the next house was a Hungarian and could scarcely speak English. With both parents out of the way Cynthia realized that the baby was practically in her arms. Yet Cynthia had not prepared her-villa in rural France. Cynthia had booked passage as Cynthia Ross and child.

Toddles was beginning to slip another word or two. Under the circumstances Cynthia considered it advisable to teach it the word "Mamma." It would save the situation.

Cynthia reveled in the possession of a bit of humanity that, for the time being, was all her own. She made innumerable sketches and when they arrived in her villa in France she hung them about the walls and made her selection for the prize portrait.

It was all of five months later that John Winthrop took his first stroll. In those five months, along Fifth avenue. The pilgrimage of illness was evident in a short cropped blonde head and a vanishing scar on one temple.

He stopped at the window of an art store that flaunted its latest treasure.

For a long time his eyes rested on the central picture. It was a golden-haired baby standing on tip-toe and trying to reach the yellow head of a sunflower.

"Joyce!" burst from his lips.

And with the movement of his lips something snapped within John Winthrop's head. Mists cleared and the light of understanding swept into his eyes; he drew a long draught of spring sunshine and realized that memory had returned to him.

Inside the shop he was informed that the portrait was not for sale. "It is the prize picture from the Institute contest," said the man in the art store.

"Cynthia—" Winthrop bent over the name in the corner of the canvass. "I don't make out the last name?"

"Ross—Cynthia Ross—she has a villa in Normandy," vouched the clerk. "Have you the exact address?" questioned Winthrop.

Another fortnight and John Winthrop made his way through the lanes to a villa in Normandy. Mingled emotions burned within him, but he had determined to give Cynthia Ross a chance to defend her action before putting the matter in less lenient hands than his own.

He saw her then as he approached the garden with the sun of glorious France shining on her hair and in her eyes. Toddles, some few feet away, was playing in the big sand hill.

Winthrop watched them for a long moment with a peculiar tightening of the jaw.

"Daddy!" the baby's high pitched voice rang out. She started toward him, but tripped over her little pail.

Cynthia cast one swift, hunted look into the blonde man's eyes and clasped the child convulsively in her arms. She turned defiantly toward him, then slowly her entire being drooped pitifully and very slowly she came toward Winthrop. Without raising the heavy eyelids she put the baby in his arms; her hand brushed his and the man quivered. Cynthia turned away.

"Mamma!" wailed Toddles.

A hot flame darted through Cynthia. She turned to meet the surprise in the blonde man's eyes.

"Nobody came to claim her!" she cried in self defense.

"I got a rap on the head—the week—"

"You have been ill!" put in Cynthia swiftly, contritely, "and I am the cause of it."

"No, no!" Winthrop pushed the blonde hair from his temple. "I was knocked down. This scar proves it. My memory only came back when I saw the portrait of—" He touched the baby's curls—"Joyce."

"Joyce!" Cynthia laughed more or less hysterically. "I am afraid she won't know that name!"

"What have you been calling her?" "Oh—Toddles, Darling Sweetheart—anything that came into my head."

Gentleness, tenderness, all that was beautiful swept into Winthrop's eyes. "It is rather strange that one who can love children so—should remain unmarried," was his quiet remark.

"I have never—liked men," said Cynthia, and a slow smile dawned.

The surprise in Winthrop's face turned to quizzical humor. Cynthia was not aware that her eyes were expressing things quite readable to the masculine eye.

"Nor I women," laughed Winthrop. "Not even the mother of Toddles!" Cynthia couldn't help asking.

"Toddles' mother was my brother's wife," said Winthrop; "the baby was orphaned when she was five months old—my sister and I have done the best we could, but my sister is not fond of children. You may have seen her on the porch."

"You have known I lived—"

"Since the first. I have watched you a hundred times." He caught her hand swiftly when she would have escaped. "Don't run away—little mother of Toddles." He spoke breathlessly, for the hand within his was trembling. "I have hoped always for this."

"You should hate and despise me," Cynthia's voice was broken.

"Mamma!" A tiny voice called from the foot of the garden.

The flame made itself felt in both the man and the woman. Cynthia tried to drag her heavy glance from John Winthrop's eyes.

"I will—have to teach her not—to—call me—" The hysterical catch in Cynthia's voice cut off the last word.

"Don't do it, Cynthia Ross!" Winthrop drew her panting and breathless into his arms. "To the world and to the child herself she is my baby. If you take that word from my baby's lips I will take you arrested as a kidnaper." He tilted up the chin that had sunk very low. "Do you understand?"

"I begin to think I do," Cynthia laughed softly.

TUBERCULOSIS

Causes Death of Mrs. Blythe At Memphis.

Mrs. W. W. Blythe died in Memphis, Tenn., yesterday morning, after a long illness of tuberculosis, aged about 25 years. She was formerly Miss Buford Wilkins and was reared in this city. Her husband and one child, a daughter two years old, survive. Mrs. Blythe was a member of the Baptist church. The remains will arrive here this morning and, after funeral services at the residence of Mr. Max J. Blythe, the interment will take place in Riverside cemetery.

At Christian Church.

Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the annual muster of the Ninth Street Christian church will be held. This service, which by years of use has become an institution of the life of this church, is the most largely attended as a rule of all the services of the year. It is as its name indicates a great assembly of members of the church. But all are welcome and even invited to share in the pleasure and profit of it. Hitherto many not members of the church have been present on this annual occasion.

While the items of the program of this service are never given out beforehand it is safe to say that they will be both helpful and striving. The minister says there will be no roll call of individuals as there has been heretofore but instead each church member attending will leave with the doorkeeper his name on a card of registration provided for the meeting. The omission of this roll call will greatly shorten the service, he says without taking anything whatever from the variety and interest of its exercises. Meantime the knowledge of those in attendance is got by the registration.

The roll call to be used will be of classes in the Sunday School and other smaller groups such as the Guilds of the ladies and the Jim Young Co. of the Boy's Brigade. These will meet at 2:30 p. m. in the Sunday School rooms on the first floor of the church and the members of each group will march together to the Auditorium where places will have been assigned to each. There is already much rivalry between those groups as to which shall have the largest percentage of its enrollment present in this great annual meeting. This meeting will occur despite the weather.

OPERATED ON HIMSELF.

San Francisco Surgeon Didn't Quite Succeed, But He Saw the Job Thoroughly Done.

San Francisco, Feb. 21.—Dr. Bertram E. Alden, chief surgeon of the French hospital here, has carried out in part his theory that self-operations for appendicitis are not impossible.

On diagnosing his symptoms Dr. Alden called in his professional friends as witnesses. In the operating room he injected the spinal anesthesia, which left his mind clear and gave him control of his arms.

He made the necessary abdominal cuts, but at this point the matter was deemed too serious for experiment, and two fellow surgeons completed the operation, removing the appendix, while Dr. Alden remained an interested witness of their manipulations. The operation took place Sunday, and Dr. Alden is reported to be rapidly recovering.

FIVE MIDSHIPMEN QUIT.

In Spite of Lowered Academic Standing, Couldn't Pass.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 20.—Notwithstanding the action of the academic board in lowering the standard of requirement in certain studies, five midshipmen, all members of the fourth class, severed their connection with the naval service because of their standing in the recent semi annual examinations.

A number of other midshipmen, it was said, were enabled to qualify in the tests through the lowering of the passing marks.

To Cross Ocean.

Lyhn, Mass., Feb. 21.—"Believing that I can best prove to the people that the aeroplane has come to stay by making a cross Atlantic flight. I shall attempt such a trip during the early part of May," said Harry N. Atwood today.

Atwood said he would carry sufficient gasoline to make a 900-mile continuous flight and when he found his fuel getting low would make a landing near some ocean liner. Two men will accompany him on the flight, one a mechanic and another acquainted with the sea.

Plans for the improved type of hydro-aeroplane, which he will use, have been completed and the work of building it is said to have commenced. A lifeboat will be carried and a small supply of food.

Atwood expects to make his trip across the ocean in thirty hours, alighting twice on the way.

To cover the distance of about 2,450 miles between the coasts of Newfoundland and Ireland in the time specified it would be necessary for the young aviator to maintain a speed of eighty-three miles an hour.

What Men Like In Women.

We have all heard men grow eloquent over the charm of modesty in a woman's behavior, dress and conversation. And we have seen those same men turn from modesty to pursue the gay, striking, amusing coquette. We have heard them discourse upon the worth of the domestic woman, who had no longing for any life beyond the walls of her home; the sweet home-maker whose needle was her delight in hours of repose, and whose preserves and pickles and angel cakes were the talk of the town, writes Ella Wheeler Wilcox in McCall's Magazine for February.

Yet we have seen this girl grow old and remain unsought by the men who praised her, while the giddy flirt, who danced till dawn and slept till noon—and then only arose to massage and manicure and plan new toilettes for the evening—was pursued by eager suitors.

One thing can be said with something of certainty. A man likes a woman who has the tact to listen with interest while he talks of himself—of his hopes, ambitions and joys and sorrows. And he likes the woman who can make him laugh. Given these two qualities, almost any type of woman becomes ideal to man at least for the time being.

A woman of perception and power of analysis must understand that she continually has to remake herself after marriage in order to remain the ideal woman to her husband. He has enjoyed the piquancy and elusiveness and coquetry of the sweetheart he pursued; it all lent interest to the chase. But he wants those elements of his ideal woman eliminated at the altar. It is one thing to have an elusive sweetheart, who is cold today and warm tomorrow, but it is quite another thing to have a moody wife. It is one thing to win a coquette's maid from her army of pursuers, but quite another thing to see him fluttering about a coquettish wife.

Therefore, the ideal bride must not imagine she has nothing to do but remain as she is in order to be a permanently ideal wife. That is simply out of the question.

Her life work has only just begun; and if she settles down into mere domesticity, mere loyalty, mere phlegmatic goodness, she will soon cease to be an ideal. The coquettish sweetheart must not grow dull or commonplace in her letting go of old coquetties. She must simply grow more capable of entertaining and amusing and pleasing her husband and his friends.

Horses First.

A recent periodical contains a witty sketch by H. L. Mencken on the horse, called forth by this clever writer's observations at the recent Madison Square Garden horse show, where he perceived an exhibition of two different sorts of stock, that of the tanbark ring and that of the cushioned boxes, and went away filled with admiration for the magnificent development of the one and pity for the ridiculous shortcomings of the other. The horse of today, says Mr. Mencken, is the tragedian of the brute creation—his doom sounded at the very moment of his supreme triumph.

Here was the horse triumphant and impeccable. In gait, in temper, in line, in color, in the very sheen of their backs, these horses were perfect horses. They met the conditions of life in their world, the demands made upon them by that fate which weighs horses, not approximately, as we men do, but precisely, exactly.

The roving eye wondered to the boxes. Here, also, were creatures bred deliberately to a spectacular business—the business, to-wit, of being beautiful, of filling the world with exquisite color and form. Let us not lie about them; a few were really beautiful—approximately, in spots! This one had an ear like a sea-shell—and a nose like a clam set on end! This one had eyes like violets—and hair like wire! What was that one doing with a wrist like a longshoreman's? What need had the one behind her for two chins—or was it three? And the one beyond, the one in purple silk, with her daughter beside her in pink—why the mustache, why that startling suggestion of goatee? Beauties, perhaps, regnant or retired—but imperfect beauties. A palpable falling short of the ideal. We human have tackled the horse first, and left our own race for a less busy day.

To Dazzle Gotham.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Mrs. C. H. Anthony, of Muncie, Ind., will go to New York next week to continue her social conquest. Her weapons will be an array of clothes and shoes which is so blinding her own servants have to wear smoked glasses. Six pairs of shoes are studded with diamonds, one pair is set with turquoises, and a bronze pair is covered with gold beads. She will wear two massive gold anklets sparkling with gems. She goes to Gotham with twenty-five evening gowns and thirty suits.
